English

WALT: punctuate sentences using question marks. To know about the past through events beyond living memory.

This is a portrait of King Charles ii. If you remember, he was the king at the time of the Great Fire. He made lots of important decisions about what happened after the Great Fire. Imagine you have lived through the Great Fire. You have lost your home and many of your belongings. You are living in a tent outside of London. What questions do you have for the king?

Write your questions below using a question mark (?) instead of a full stop. Can you remember the question words?

If you would like a little more information about the king, here are two websites that you might find useful.

Maths

WALT: subtract two-digit numbers.

When we subtract numbers, (take away) we can either write the number sentence like this: $23 - 12 =$ and use a number line or number square to work out the answer or we can use column subtraction. If we use column subtraction, we must put the biggest number at the top and then we always start with the ones.

		23
		12-
		11

Make sure you put the digits in the correct columns. All the digits must be underneath each other. Complete the number sentences using your preferred method. You can also visit this website for a challenge:

SPaG

We are going to be revising compound words. A compound word is made up of two words that make sense on their own, and when put together make a new word: sun + flower = sunflower is a compound word, but fea + tures = features isn't because fea and tures are not words in their own right.

Use the pictures below to make compound words.

Phonics

Don't forget to visit Phonics Play website to access all the games and activities. The log in details are on the website.

This week we are revising /g/ saying /j/ and /c/ saying /s/. Read the words on the bookmark, making sure you pronounce them correctly. Look at the two tricky words (common exception words). Remember they're tricky because we can't sound them out. Check what it is they say with your adult. Can you write a sentence for each of the tricky words?
